

The People's Column

The Eagle is always preaching civic beauty for Bryan, why don't you call attention to the old automobile plates scattered around the court house square. I do not know whose business it is to clean them up, but I do know that they are very unattractive. It has been more than a month since the change in auto numbers was made, yet you still see these "dead soldiers" scattered all around. It would be very easy for some one to dump them in a trash can and get them hauled off. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

Negro's Illness Postpones Trial Alleged Killers

Because of the illness of Jack Williams, one of the two negroes charged with murder in connection with the death of John J. Losey, of Louisville, Ky., cadet at Texas A. and M. last fall, the trial of Williams and Ollie Taylor, indicted with him, was continued by District Judge W. C. Davis until May 22.

A certificate of illness from Dr. J. N. Wilson of Navasota was presented in court. The certificate was to the effect that Dr. Wilson had visited Williams Tuesday and found him in bed suffering with malarial congestion of vital organs and the physician's opinion was that he would be confined to his bed for two or three weeks.

The two negroes, who were driving on College road, are charged with running down Cadet Losey, causing injuries that resulted in almost instant death. They were indicted by the February grand jury, a bill of murder being returned.

In postponing the trial, Judge Davis advised all witnesses they should be in court on the morning of May 22.

Upshaw to Speak Saturday Night At 1st Baptist

Congressman Will D. Upshaw, frequently referred to as the "Georgia Cyclone," will speak in Bryan on the subject "America's Greatest Battle," at the First Baptist church at 7:30 p. m., Saturday, March 15. Mr. Upshaw is vice president of the Southern Baptist convention but is brought to Bryan under the direction of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas.

His career has been an unusual one. At an age when youth generally is making preparation for life's work, Mr. Upshaw was stricken by an accident and lay for eight years flat on his back in a plaster cast. When he had sufficiently recovered to leave his bed he entered upon his preparation for life. Always a cripple, his accomplishments have been unusual, for he made his way to a place in the congress of the United States, which position he held for 8 years.

As a prohibitionist Mr. Upshaw has never side-stepped the issue for political preferment. As an orator he is recognized as one of the most entertaining speakers on the platform.

The citizens of Bryan are invited to hear Mr. Upshaw.

Lover of Nature Lifts Cypressess At Mitchell Home

Among the adornments of the W. C. Mitchell home on College Avenue, of which both Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were justly proud, were two Italian cypress trees which had developed finely after planting a year or two ago.

So when Mr. Mitchell went home Tuesday to find the trees missing from the spot where they had taken root and flourished, he leaped to the conclusion that Mrs. Mitchell, in her ambition to make her yard the most "beautiful" in the neighborhood, enthused over the county wide contest, had worked out a new landscape plan and had moved the trees.

Acting on this assumption Mr. Mitchell went into the house and inquired as to the new location of the cypresses. Mrs. Mitchell, he is reported to have said, regarded him strangely for a moment and then went for a look at the spot where the trees had been planted.

The only explanation which the Mitchells have for the disappearance of the trees is that someone, overzealous for a "yard beautiful" appropriated them. Just now, it is said, they are not so enthusiastic over the campaign to beautify the lawns of Bryan and Brazos county homes.

BURGLAR TRIO ESCAPES FROM JAIL IN WACO

STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

Believed Method of Flight After Break

(By Associated Press)

WACO, March 12.—Officers of central Texas are on the lookout for three men who escaped from the McLennan county jail last night with the aid of a smuggled pistol and drove away in a stolen automobile.

The men were Emory Abernathy, 24, of Hillsboro; William Turner, 21, of Waco, and Clyde Barrow, 18, of Dallas.

The trio, all convicted burglars, took their first step toward freedom when they pulled a pistol on Night Jailer R. P. Stanford and left him locked in the cell they had occupied.

They succeeded in making good their escape by slipping down the stairs to the jailer's office and surprising City Jailer Huse Jones and opened the door with his keys.

When outside, the man who carried the pistol fired two or three shots back at the jail, and Jones, who reached for his weapon as the door clanked shut, fired back at them through a window.

When last seen by a filling station employe across the street from the jail the three men were running breakneck speed down Columbus avenue toward Fifth street.

Deputy Sheriff Smith Doshier, who was immediately notified of the escape after Jones, the city jailer, had freed Stanford from the cell, repeated the story as they told it to him.

Stanford had gone upstairs to the prisoners' quarters to feed them when they pulled the pistol. They locked him in their cell after taking his keys to the doors separating them from the jailer's office.

How the prisoners got the pistol was a puzzle to officers. Jones was in the county jailer's office because the city is housing its prisoners in the county jail while the new city hall is being built.

He had no suspicion of the prisoners being loose until they told him to hand them the keys.

Fifteen minutes after the prisoners made their break from the jail and headed toward Fifth street, an automobile belonging to Mrs. J. M. Byrd, 724 North Fifth street, was reported stolen. It was a Ford coupe.

3RD FIRE ON NEW ORLEANS WATER FRONT

400 BALES COTTON BURN TODAY; $1,000,000 LOSS TUESDAY

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—Fire of undetermined origin, the third to start mysteriously on the New Orleans waterfront in three weeks, destroyed 400 bales of cotton in a warehouse today.

After the fire was brought under control, the police began an investigation to determine if the fires were of incendiary origin.

The first fire destroyed a wharf, did damage amounting to $3,000,000 and took six lives.

Late yesterday the 1100-foot Mandeville wharf, heavily stored with cargo of the Munson steamship line, was consumed by fire, and the line's steamship Munaires was seriously damaged. The fire marshal estimated the loss at approximately $1,000,000.

The Munaires, tied alongside the wharf, quickly caught fire and despite efforts of the crew and two fire tugs the flames spread over the ship.

Finally the burning vessel was cut loose and towed across the river. The tugs put out the fire on deck, but fought the flames in hold No. 1 until well after dark.

The Pacific, British-owned ship, under lease to the Munson line, was cut loose from the pier before she was seriously damaged.

At 1:30 a business session of the circle was held with Mrs. J. E. Dishman, chairman, presiding.

Texas Kills Goose That Lays Golden Egg by Using Inferior Cotton Seed, Claim of Expert

HOUSTON, March 13.—Standardization of cotton seed, with the view of producing a better grade of staple, is a practical solution of the cotton problems in this state, according to Roy F. Saunders, McKinney, statistician and cotton expert of one of the leading brokerage firms of the state, in an address today before the Texas Cotton Committee here. Mr. Saunders pointed out that there is but one way for Texas cotton growers to meet the situation and that is through standardization of seed. Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas, chairman of the Texas Cotton Committee, presided at the meeting.

"Texas is killing the goose that laid the golden egg," Mr. Saunders said. "Slowly but surely the world's greatest industry is heading for the rocks. Previous reports to this committee show without a doubt that America's greatest crop 'King Cotton' is rapidly falling in production per acre and quality both. It has now approached the point where if something is not done to change the trend, a crisis seems eminent."

"According to the Cotton Committee's last report, the 1925 census showed 82.6 per cent of the crop income of Texas to be from cotton. Many of our black land counties will derive from 90 to 95 per cent of their crop income from cotton. While this system is not economically sound, it must be tolerated because the farmers are not in position to change the system. Any immediate relief they get will of necessity come from some system of producing cotton cheaper and selling it higher. A plan of this kind must have as its foundation made production per acre and better quality."

"The most practical method of raising production of Texas cotton immediately is through the use of better seed. You will find the lowest producing variety among the high ten of each experiment station, listed by D. T. Killough in his report to your committee last spring, making an average of more than double the average production of Texas. This should be conclusive evidence that good seed will accomplish one of the aims of your committee. But how are the farmers to get good seed when there is only a sufficient amount of state certified seed produced to plant 3 per cent of our acreage? What are we to do with the other 97 per cent?"

"There is but one practical way for Texas to meet this situation. This is through community standardization. In this way the seed supply of 3 per cent can be kept pure until all the community has been supplied with good seed. Some good examples of this are to be found in Dallas, Collin and Grayson counties. In 1927, the Rowlett community planted a carload of certified Sunshine seed and gave it on one gin. The other gin scrambled cotton. All the second year Sunshine seed was saved, culled and offered to the public at gin price. Farmers could bring in any kind of seed and exchange them bushel for bushel. In this way the community became almost solid Sunshine the second year. The results were increased acre production and one of the highest cotton markets in Texas. The farmers produced more cotton and received a better price. The ginners got more ginning and the merchant more business.

"This community in a very simple and practical way accomplished what this committee would like to accomplish for Texas. Incidentally it might be mentioned that this movement wrought no good for communities surrounding Rowlett. They must protect their trade by improving their cotton; it can not be done in any other way."

"Over in Grayson county, Pat Luby of Tom Bean has standardized one of his two gins on Sunshine cotton. To start the Tom Bean movement, Mr. Luby gave fifty three-bushel sacks of seed to his customers and bought their second year seed back at a premium and in turn sold the second year seed at $1 per bushel to standardize a gin. His venture has been highly satisfactory."

"Cassidy & Son at Weston in Collin county plant their own acreage amounting to 500 acres in certified seed each year and sell and exchange seed with their customers each year. They are approximately 90 per cent Sunshine and on account of their good market are getting more ginning than they can handle. They have drawn trade and ginning from much larger communities on account of the price they have been able to pay. They too have increased acre production and are getting more cotton from their old customers and in addition adding new customers."

"These ginners buy certified seed in carload lots and supply any customer wanting certified seed at a low price. Many gins in North Texas are standardizing on the strength of what these men have accomplished. "Quantity production may be accomplished by standardization and it may be impaired. The average producer knows very little about spinning quality of cotton. If allowed to make the selection, he will often select the cotton most prevalent in his community. If the community has a bad reputation, it has been caused by the production of an inferior staple cotton. What the community needs is a change in variety, but what it usually gets is more acreage in the variety that has contributed most to its downfall. Texas farmers are demanding high line per cent. Cotton seed breeders are breeding high line per cent at the expense of good staple because it is popular and not because it is better. Texas growers must be taught that they can produce a 33 per cent cotton as economically as they can a 43 per cent cotton and get a much more valuable product. A fair and just marketing system, where the farmer's cotton is properly graded and stapled and sold on its merits and the farmer paid accordingly, is the only way of educating the public. Under this system each breeder's product would be compelled to stand on its merits. Under these arrangements the breeders would be striving to see who could produce the best staple and the most lint cotton per acre instead of striving for lint per cent."

"In summarizing my thoughts, let me say that if Texas wants to check the decline in acre production immediately, let them plant better seed of high producing strain, which must be obtained by increasing our available supply of state certified seed. This may best be accomplished through standardization. "If Texas wants better quality cotton, let a way be provided by which farmers can get paid according to the spinning value of the product they bring to the gin."

Shell Co. Leases Cover 9500 Acres Brazos Co. Land

Mineral rights leases secured by the Shell Petroleum Company landowners in the southern part of Brazos county, most of the land lying close to the confluence of the Navasota and Brazos rivers, have been filed with county clerk Jess B. McGee in the last ten days and others are received almost daily.

To date 18 leases, covering an approximate of 9,000 acres have been filed in this period. In some of the leases, usually for smaller tracts, a price of $1 per acre has been paid but in the case of larger tracts the full consideration is not set forth. The leases cover acreages running from 15 to 2,850 acres.

The Texas Company and the Sun Oil Company also are said to have leased a considerable acreage in this section of the county.

According to some local oil experts the Shell company may be expected to drill in this area in the not distant future, as this is said to be the policy of the company, once it leases any considerable acreage in one section.

Autoists Shoot Negro at Work; Motive Unknown
A negro named Doc Gibson, who lives on the W. F. Graham farm in the Rock Prairie community was given first aid at the College hospital on Saturday night between 8 and 9 o'clock, following what is said to have been a ruthless and malicious act on the part of unknown individuals.

The negro was fixing a tire on his car at a point on the highway near the college athletic field when, according to his testimony, a small roadster occupied by white men or boys passed him going in the direction of Navasota. Occupants of the car fired two shots at him, one bullet taking effect just above the hip, passing through the abdominal cavity and out through the other hip.

After having his wound dressed, Gibson was moved to his home. Officers have not been able to secure any clue to the identity of his assailants.

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NO. 4 OF BRAZOS COUNTY
After consulting John M. Moore your present commissioner for this precinct and learning from him that he would not be a candidate for re-election. And after consulting a number of my friends and receiving from them their enthusiastic endorsement I decided to enter the field, knowing that the new commissioner will have to take the place of the one retiring, and Mr. Moore is too well known to need any eulogy at my hand. I realize that his place will be hard to fill, but as he has gained your confidence and accomplished so much by careful study and close application, so will I emulate his example, and by reason of this day of rapid advancement will try to improve in every way. And should you elect me to this responsible position I pledge my best efforts in your behalf.

Hoping to be favored with your ballot in the July primaries, and thanking you in advance for any favors shown me, I am sincerely yours,

Weather Conditions and Their Effect on Cotton Production Set Forth by U. S. Bureau Man

AUSTIN, March 13.—Members of the Texas Cotton Committee have received mimeographed copies of a paper on the subject, "Weather and Cotton Yield in Texas," written by Lawrence H. Daingerfield of Houston, senior meteorologist and section director of the United States weather bureau, sent out by Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research and chairman of the committee.

This paper includes the results of a thirty-one-year study, covering the years from 1899 through 1929. In it, Mr. Daingerfield points out the close connection between the rainfall and temperature and the yield of cotton in the state and indicates the most favorable planting temperatures for various crops.

"The tropical origin of cotton is easily demonstrated by its tolerance to heat and marked intolerance to cold," he said. "While it generally is safe to sow wheat when the average daily air temperature reaches 37 degrees to 38 degrees, oats at 42 degrees and 44 degrees, and plant corn at 55 degrees, cotton seed should not go in the ground until the mean warmth reaches 62 degrees, according to trustworthy authorities. Thus the planting period in Texas during a normal year may range late February in the Lower Rio Grande Valley until the middle of May in the northwest cotton limits of the state. As a matter of fact, there are wide variations from the normal planting dates due to early or backward seasons in consequence of favorable or unfavorable temperatures, and the presence or absence of moisture."

"Roughly speaking, a month to six weeks may elapse in a normal season after the last killing frost of spring before the soil reaches the best temperature for proper germination; examination of frost tables will show this to be a fact. The warming-up process in spring and, conversely, the chilling in autumn are more rapid in the interior of the state than near the coast."

"For the best growth of the plant, sustained high temperatures are favorable, both night and day, with a summer mean of not less than 77 degrees. The older varieties of cotton required a growing season of not less than 200 days for best results. New short-season or precocious varieties, with much less weed, have shortened the season considerably, especially in the northwestern and western sections of the state. Cotton now normally begins to mature in from 100 to 135 days after planting, with a maturing period ranging from possibly only two weeks to as much as two months."

"Excessive rain during time of harvest, thus delaying picking, beating out the open bolls and straining the staple, is, perhaps a more detrimental factor than early frost danger."

"Delayed planting due to late spring frosts continued cold weather, excessive rain or drought is a greater deterrent to a full crop than ill-favored autumn conditions. A poor season in the soil during the winter months is a marked factor for ill results, provided no balancing favorable weather follows during the season of cotton growth and maturity."

"Wide variations in rainfall from month to month, especially during the growing season, are detrimental to yield. Excessive rain during the normal planting and cultivating season is rarely compensated for by sufficiently favorable weather during maturity and time of harvest to produce a normal crop."

"Owing to the propagation and spread of the boll weevil since 1892, together with other insect pests to lesser extent, new factors have been in recent years, materially complicating the weather and yield relationship. For instance, in 1900, the second wet year of the drug store was destroyed by fire early Sunday. Fire destroyed a servant house and a large two-story barn where onion crates were stored. Fire broke out about $2,000 when the warehouse in the

Lee, said to be about 25 years of age, appeared in Bryan on the afternoon of Feb. 24 and passed checks to which it is said he had forged the names of his father and brother, on A. M. Waldrop & Co., T. K. Lawrence, Inc., Acorn Stores, Inc., and Tyler Haswell. It is expected that Lee will be brought before Justice J. T. McCreary for a preliminary hearing on each of the four cases.

Grocery Entered Sunday Morning; Register Rifled

Sometime near 2:30 on Sunday morning according to employees of the Nichol's Cafe which is next door, prowlers entered the K. and S. Grocery and K. and S. Market, securing some $12 or $12.50 from the cash registers of those establishments. A quantity of cigarettes is also missing from the K. and S. Grocery today.

The only information available on the occurrence is that employees at the Nichol's Cafe heard noises on the roof at about the hour mentioned and supposed it to be cats chasing rats. Entry was made through the sky-light and a chisel found near one of the cash registers is thought to have been used to effect an entry.

Car Leaves Road As Driver Talks Deaf, Dumb Lingo

"It takes more than two hands, with eight fingers and two thumbs, to convince a passenger that you are not driving too fast and hold a car on a sharp curve that suddenly opens up before you," said J. F. Morris of Houston this morning, after the auto in which he and his father were riding was ditched last night between Bryan and College.

R. C. Morris, father of J. F., is deaf and dumb, and his son was trying to convince him that they were not traveling at a dangerous rate of speed when their car left the road, turned over a number of times and finally came to a stop. The machine was badly wrecked in the accident, so far as top and body were concerned, but still could be driven.

R. C. Morris suffered a fractured collar bone and one finger was broken. He also was severely bruised about the body. J. F. Morris suffered slight scratches and bruises. R. C. Morris was picked up by two cadets whose names were not learned and taken to the A. and M. hospital and later was brought to a hospital in Bryan. He is a foreman with the Minor Printing Company of Houston, while his son is an optician. They live at 400 Quitman Street, Houston.

War on Canines Without Owners Now Is Planned

War has been declared on ownerless, homeless dogs or those permitted to run at large without proper chaperonage or not wearing tags indicating that city taxes have been paid by the city authorities. This activity is the result of an increasing number of apparently ownerless canines and of many complaints that have come to city authorities in regard to this matter.

This morning a conference was held between City Manager J. Bryan Miller, Police Chief Martin and other city employees in regard to the work of rounding up ownerless dogs after an interval of about two weeks has been given which owners may pay taxes. Chief Martin expects to make an announcement in regard to this matter within the next day or two.

Another reason for the campaign is that if the large number of roaming and apparently ownerless dogs is not checked, there are likely to be accidents this summer, with serious results after the season during which rabies is more common than at present.

The Right-of-Way Problem

The importance of proceeding with the greatest possible speed in the matter of securing rights-of-way for the new route chosen for Highway No. 6 between Bryan and Benchley, in order that the state highway commission may proceed with the award of contracts for this stretch of state designated road, was brought to the attention of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce Tuesday by County Judge A. S. McSwain and, in turn, referred to the highway committee of the organization for such aid as it may render in this matter.

It is reported that while most if not all land owners along this route are willing to give title to land for the new road, there are residents of that section who are asking for compensation for damages which they say will result to their property or for payment for work which will be necessitated, such as the moving of farm buildings, by the cutting through of the new highway.

It is reasonable for property owners to expect some cooperation from the county in this matter, but consideration also should be given the fact that the county has a fund of approximately $24,000 with which to secure rights-of-way for approximately 58 miles of road and that this sum must be distributed on a pro rata basis in the beginning or it will fall short of doing what must be done, with the result that the entire program may be endangered.

These property holders, also, should bear in mind the fact that in the vast majority of cases property values are enhanced by such improvements as is contemplated in this particular case. There is no question, except in unusual cases, but that farm land which faces a highly improved state road, a main artery that gives the shortest route to the distribution point in the territory, is worth more money than land located on an unimproved, side road which provides a longer route to the market place and which is not open in all seasons and weathers.

In considering what the county should do, the land owner on the route also should seriously consider benefit that comes to him by reason of the improvement and the fact that although his neighbor on the back road may pay just about as much taxes, if not more, he does not derive the same benefit, in convenience of haul, of always passable roads and of enhancement in land values, that come to the landowner whose property abuts the improved highway. Considering these matters, thought also should be given the fact that unless a scheme of compensation is worked out in the beginning, by mutual agreement among property owners and county officials, that can be carried out through the whole improvement contemplated for this county, either the program will fail or the county will be compelled to result to condemnation proceedings which might generate some feeling and ill will. Infinitely better would be the plan for property holders to get together with county officials, consider available funds and probable benefits and agree on terms that are possible in view of all the factors in the case.

Reports of divers and sundry kind come out of Soviet Russia and frequently these are of the most contradictory nature, but the recent article by Joseph Stalin, secretary of the Communist party, warning it against heads turned by success and advising that haste be made slowly, would give the impression that this organization, numerically greatly in the minority, is not yet at a point where the wildest dreams of the Communist may be turned into reality. Two points in his article are significant. One was that by ruthless closing of churches the Communist party might overplay its hand, indicating his belief that this activity should be curbed, if not ceased. The other was that the "artel," a loose form of producers cooperative, was more appropriate than the "communa," a stricter and more cohesive organization, which was favored by the organizers of collectives. It is stated that after the appearance of the Stalin article thousands of peasants began "uncommunizing" their smaller livestock, such as pigs, sheep and poultry and their little vegetable gardens, and in some cases their cows and horses which had been gathered into the common pool by overzealous organizers. There is some reason to believe that many of the peasants favor some of the communal activities, such as joint work in the fields, but that they dislike the program which compels them to give up such property as live stock and, in extreme cases, even pooling homes and clothing. The future of Russia is on the knees of the gods and any prediction of what condition will obtain ten or twenty years hence would be foolish, but one fact is true. This is that in certain fundamental aspects the average Russian is not different from humans elsewhere and one of these is that ownership of property is bound to appeal to him and governmental schemes for depriving him of his title in order that it may be shared indiscriminately, are not likely to be favored by the mass of the people who will supply the bulk of the property to be pooled.

Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader and mystic, is reported to have started his march in civil disobedience to the Indian government. But the decision of the government to permit him to make his march to the gulf of Cambay will make his campaign about as effective as that lead to Washington some years ago by Coxey.

The defeat of the MacDonald ministry in the house of commons Tuesday night carries a threat for the naval parity. The premier recently predicted a treaty in the near future. It might be well for him to speed matters up, if he has the power.

The number of telephones in New York is reported about 8,000 less for February. And some optimist figures that this means a great decrease in "wrong" numbers.

The Flying Fleet, which now has visited more than a score of Texas cities, has been active in making these surveys for civic and municipal bodies, as well as in dedicating airports and doing other constructive work for aviation, according to advance representatives. Pilot Clyde E. Pangborn, operations manager, is said to have flown more than 2,000 flying fields, corn fields, cotton patches, and meadows during the last 12 years, and for this reason is considered somewhat of an airport authority.

Pilots Jack Echols and Hugh Herndon Jr., who will also place their planes at the disposal of the committee, have had similar experience. Echols only recently completed a 40,000 mile airway survey which took him into the most uninhabited sections of Central and South America in quest of fields which would lend themselves to development.

The survey will be just one of many events on the program of the Flying Fleet here Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Each day at noon the pilots will fly over the city in formation, illustrating army maneuvers and dropping copies of the Bryan Daily Eagle, several of which will contain tickets entitling finders to fly as guests of the newspaper. Parachutes, entitling finders to gifts from enterprising merchants, will be dropped Saturday.

Each afternoon, at the Walton field, there will be exhibitions of stunt and upside down flying, aerial acrobatics, deadstick landings, which are landings with the power shut off, and a parachute jump. There will be no parking or admission charges. The use of the field has been extended by Dr. T. O. Walton and C. P. Foster.

Many Entries Are Attracted by "Yard Beautiful" Contest; List Contributors Who Give Prizes

The civic contest being conducted as a county-wide project by the Brazos County Federation of Clubs is assuming large proportions, and interest in the plan increases daily, with the list of contestants for the prizes offered in this "home beautiful" work, steadily growing.

The outline of the contest includes several classifications. One class includes the homes of Bryan, College Station and College Park, College Road and adjacent homes in these sections. Then there are the children's garden clubs, composed of the children of the schools of Bryan and College. The 4-H Club girls of Brazos county under the supervision of Miss Lucy Givens, county home demonstration agent, composed another group, and so the outline grows. In each of these classes prizes will be offered and those interested are asked to watch the columns of the Eagle this week for a complete list of these prizes as offered.

Three classifications apply in all groups: Those who do all the work on their flower gardens and beautification project themselves; those who do only a part of the work and hire some help, and those who use only hired labor. These three classes give equal chance to all and will encourage a greater interest in campaign for a "Beautiful Bryan and Brazos County."

A list of contributions, which makes possible the prizes for these various groups is announced by those in charge of the contest as follows:

City of Bryan $50, Chamber of Commerce $50, Bryan Woman's Club $41.50, Bryan Lions Club $25, Bryan Nursery and Floral Company $25, J. Coulter Smith Nursery (in plants) $25, Extension Service Club $20, Bryan Rotary Club $10, Campus Study Club $10, South Side Developing Company College Park $10, Bryan Reading Club $10, Brazos County Federation $7.50, Music Study Club $2.50, American Legion Auxiliary $2.50, W. M. U. of the First Baptist church $2.50, Woman's Missionary Society of First Methodist church $2.50.

There is also a civic contest organized for the negroes of Bryan, which is being conducted through the efforts of the colored women and gives promise of great results. Special prizes will be arranged for these contests also.

Wife Butter Surplus Out

On January 1, 1930, there were 40,000,000 pounds more butter in storage than on January 1, 1929, but it has been pointed out that if every farmer in the butter producing area would increase his family consumption of butter just one pound per week, this great surplus causing unsatisfactory prices the country over, would soon be wiped out. Our problem in Brazos county is not one of over-production, but will it be for some time to come, but it is one of increased consumption in practically every home in Brazos county. Whole-some milk from cows fed on home-grown feeds may be made a source of much of our food, rich in vitamins indispensable to the health of the human body, and in this way furnish a ready and profitable market for all the feed crops we can grow.

Work Is Speeded By County Agent In Short Month

County Agent C. L. Beason states that the shorter the time the faster one should work, his report to the Extension Service for February indicating that this was his policy during the shortest month in the year. Notwithstanding the bad roads, his report shows 1,925 miles traveled, 18 meetings held with a total attendance of 528 people, one community club organized, 24 farms visited, four terracing demonstrations, one 4-H Club organized, 53 telephone calls.

The county agent thinks that the luncheon, sponsored by the Bryan Chamber of Commerce, to which some 25 farmers were invited to discuss plans for more feed crops, was, perhaps, the high-water mark of accomplishment for the month.

New Cream Route Opens Thursday

Cream Route No. 2 will be started Thursday morning, according to an announcement by County Agent C. L. Beason today. The route will include Rock Prairie and Wellborn and into College. Some ten or twelve farmers are expected to supply cream to start and this number is expected to be increased shortly. The route will be handled by Roy Foster, who also is covering Route No. 1.

Mrs. Mayme Moye and Dr. R. H. Harrison have been to our school and vaccinated the pupils. The children that were vaccinated all have sore arms from their vaccination. All the children's vaccinations are taking except those who were vaccinated before. Several pupils have been missing school.

The pupils of the higher room have started health poster work on Fridays.

The Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club held a regular meeting on Tuesday night, March 11. Dr. C. A. Searcy of the Lions Club and S. C. Hoyle of A. and M. College were present. An attendance prize was given and Christine Merka was the lucky one to receive the prize. There also was given a prize for the best report of their club work for the following year and Inez Higgs received it. County Agent C. L. Beason, Dr. C. A. Searcy and S. C. Hoyle gave talks about club work. A committee was appointed to prepare a program for the club for the year, and Albert Merka, Inez Higgs and Helen Kopecky were appointed on this committee. As it was a member's birthday, she asked the people to remain after the meeting adjourned and she had a surprise for them. The surprise consisted of serving her birthday cake.

Poultry Profits Mounting Higher For Edge Farmer

A possible surplus of cotton in 1930 is giving at least one Brazos county farmer no cause for concern. That man is Ed Chytil of Edge community, who "just gathers his eggs" and lets his neighbors do the worrying about the cotton situation.

Chytil began the month of January with 645 Barred Rock hens from a high egg record strain. During the month he gathered 6648 eggs that sold for $320.70. His expense for feed was $173.45, leaving a net profit for the month of $147.25.

The February record for Chytil's flock showed his number of hens cut to 640; eggs gathered, 10,555. Gross receipts from eggs sold, $510.20; operating cost $173.14; net profit $337.06.

The net earnings from the Chytil flock for the two months of January and February, the months when most farmers of this section were scratching about to see how and where money might be secured to carry on farming operations in 1930, was $484.51. The highest single days sales was $96.

Farmer of Tabor Grows Feed Crop; Markets Surplus

A conservative feed and livestock program will be no new thing to Walter Armstrong, a prominent farmer in the Tabor community whose farm last year produced feed for 45 turkeys, 14 mules and horses, 14 head of cattle, 20 head of hogs, 13 of which were fed and sold 50 or 60 hens.

The average yield of corn on the Armstrong farm in 1929 was about 25 bushels per acre. In his individual fields where commercial fertilizer was applied, the yield was about 45 bushels per acre. On unfertilized fields, the yield was much lower.

Mr. Armstrong says that he has not bought any feed for animals on his farm since 1925. He always raises more than is needed for his individual farm and has the surplus to sell to his tenants.

NEGRO TOURISTS WRECK CAR AT BOYETT CORNER

Because they thought the highway turned at the Boyett Service Station corner, near College, four negroes, two men and two women, driving from Lorena to Houston, spoiled a perfectly good holiday by colliding with a telephone post in an effort to make the turn, about 4 o'clock Sunday morning.

The entire party spent the day Sunday in the hospital at College but no serious injuries were found by the nurses and Dr. Marsh, who gave first aid. Employees of the Boyett garage found the unfortunate vacationists when they came to work on Sunday morning and helped them to the hospital. The car is a total wreck.

PAVEMENT PICK-UPS

Denton has a Twilight Baseball League. Bryan has just about the same thing in her Sunday School Baseball League. "They are good things for the community life," said a Bryan business man.

Bryan folks today received invitations from Huntsville chamber of commerce to attend the Farmers Short Course banquet on Monday, March 24th, when the East Texas Chamber of Commerce celebrates its fourth anniversary.

"The three g's necessary to win success is grit, grace and gumption," said David Reid, the grocerman.

S. G. Buchanan, assistant postmaster, stated today that 13 blocks had been added to the city free delivery mail routes of Bryan. "This means about 45 additional homes and approximately 150 persons are served with free delivery," said Mr. Buchanan, "and I feel free to say that the post office department will serve all the additional blocks that we can get to meet the post office department's regulations which are: street lighting and crossings and sidewalks." Under these favorable conditions it does seem that Bryan citizens should get busy and get these sidewalks down.

Merchants Institute Will Be Held At City Hall; First Session Monday

Henry W. Stanley, director of the Merchants' Service Bureau of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, nationally known as an authority on merchandising and selling, will conduct a business institute in Bryan, March 17-22, under the auspices of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce.

Prior to coming to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Stanley was connected at different times with the Alexander Hamilton Institute of New York, the American Institute of Business, of which he was founder and director, and with the advertising departments of some of the country's leading newspapers.

Announcement has been made that the sessions of the institute will be held in the auditorium of the city hall.

The institute, which is a specialized course of instruction in business procedure, salesmanship and advertising, is being presented to the merchants and salespeople of this city and surrounding trade territory in the interests of better business methods. All of the many features and special classes of the institute are complementary and those who attend will do so without obligation and will be the guests of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce. This course in modern merchandising is offered in the belief that the commercial interests and the salespeople here will receive valuable and practical instruction.

The plan for the institute here contemplates having Mr. Stanley deliver lectures each evening on Public Contact, Salesmanship, Advertising and kindred subjects. Every person in the business world having a selling or advertising problem will be materially helped by attending the lectures of the course.

Supplementing the night lectures, Mr. Stanley will hold a special class in window display work each morning of the institute. This course is available without charge to every person in the city interested in window decoration. Each afternoon, Mr. Stanley will conduct an advertising conference. As a teacher in these lines of work, Mr. Stanley is eminently qualified, having studied window display under supervision of authorities.

Arrangements are being made for Mr. Stanley to speak before several luncheon club organizations during his stay here. Within the last year he has spoken before more than one hundred civic clubs in forty cities.

Outside of the hours devoted to regular lectures, Mr. Stanley will hold special meetings in the business houses. He will address groups of employees on Public Contact, Salesmanship, Courtesy, Accuracy and Loyalty. No charge is made for this feature of the institute, and assurance is also given that there will be no sale of books, correspondence courses or other commercial features. In other cities where the institute has been given, the demands for the speaker's time have been so numerous that some of the stores were comdynamo of business; the objectives in advertising; plan-medium and money required in advertising; advertising copy; direct by mail advertising.

Merchandising: Turnover, the pulse of profit; why customers leave home; budgetary control, in retail store management; measuring the retail market; merchandising trends in 1930.

Window Display: Store location; the window an advertising medium; changing the window; window lighting; the window appropriation.

Special subjects for clubs, schools, etc., are as follows: Influence of civic club on American business life; mental bankrupts; seeing things; the purpose of education; our town, yours and mine.

The program for the night sessions has not yet been fully worked out, but the subjects to be given will be selected from among the following suggested by Mr. Stanley.

"Salesmanship—The First Profession"; "Advertising—The Dynamo of Business"; "Turnover—The Secret of More Profits"; "Establishing Public Contact"; "The Science of Business"; "Our Foreign Trade Relations"; "Service to the Public"; "Stop the Leaks"; "Opening the Sale"; "Use Your Windows"; "Closing the Sale"; "Seeing Things"; "Why Customers Buy"; "Sales Days"; "Printed Salesmanship"; "Plain Talks to Sales People"; "Business Management"; "The Return Goods Evil."

College News Notes

BY MRS. J. J. TAUBENHAUS

The March selection of the Literary Guild is the "Great Meadow," by Elizabeth Maddox Roberts. This marks the beginning of the fourth year for this organization. Its first appearance being in March 1927, with "Anthony Comstock," by Heywood Brown and Margaret Leech.

That College people feel somewhat shy with geology was evidenced Monday evening by the rather small attendance at the Science Seminar where the subject of Texas geology was discussed. The speaker of the evening was Dr. H. B. Stenzel of the department of geology who spoke on the "Major Structural Features of the Texas Coastal Plain." Dr. Stenzel had lantern slides showing the formation in the Texas Coastal Plain, also a geological map of Texas and one of the North American continent, showing the geological relation of Texas to the continent. He discussed the age and character of the rocks on the Coastal Plain, and explained their relations to the West Indies Islands, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Southern Rockies, showing how the structural features of the Texas Coastal Plain connect up with the Rocky Mountains and the western mountain system. The relation of oil to the geological formation was taken up. The discussion was confined almost exclusively to the physiologists and the geologists in the audience. Dr. Stenzel gives a field course on the geology of Brazos county, and much of the material presented that evening was the work of three groups of seniors taking that course.

Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Reinhardt and their little boy, Raymond, are back in their home at College Park after an absence of six weeks during which Dr. Reinhardt did research work on some species of flies for the U. S. division of entomology, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Reinhardt and Raymond were visiting relatives in Ohio during that time. Dr. Reinhardt joined the family in Ohio on his way back from Washington.

The group of college women belonging to the Christian church met Monday of this week for a joint luncheon and an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. C. C. Hedges. Those present were: Mrs. W. A. Orth, Mrs. C. N. Sheppard, Mrs. E. E. Vezey, Mrs. Ernest Langford, and Mrs. C. C. Hedges. Mrs. F. W. Hensel joined for the afternoon session.

Of interest to poultry raisers in the community is the news released by the Pan American Air System that very recently 16,000 baby chicks have been sent over an air route of 472 miles on the Brownsville-Mexico City line. The rate of mortality in chicken travel is fairly high and shippers use the airway to save time and also wear and tear on the chicks. The Cameron county hatcheries at La Feria, near Mercedes, are using air express continually for the sake of economy.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Johnson, and Mrs. Mabel McQueen, sister of Mrs. Johnson spent the week-end in Houston.

Mrs. E. O. Siecke entertained yesterday with a bridge luncheon a farewell courtesy to her sister, Mrs. Searson, of Lincoln, Neb., who is leaving the latter part of the week for California.

Mrs. S. R. Gammon and Mrs. M. L. Cashion will entertain Wednesday and Friday with the second and third of their series of luncheons.

Model Planting Schedule Planned For 40-Acre Farm Gives Acreage To Raise Feed and Garden Stuff

BY NELL BENTLEY

A question uppermost in the minds of farmers and business men in all sections of the South today is, "Will the Fall of 1930 find plenty of home grown feed and growing livestock on the farms of the South, or will it be the same old story, too much cotton and too little money for profit to the farmer who produced it?"

To assist farmers who are getting into the feed production and livestock feeding game for the first time, experts along that line have worked out a scale of feed requirements for work animals, dairy cows, hogs, etc.

By this scale it is estimated that every work animal about the farm should be provided with 50 bushels of corn or its equivalent in other grain feeds, two tons of hay and 2 acres of pasture.

Each dairy cow will require approximately 25 bushels of corn or its equivalent in other grain feeds, 2 tons of hay and 2 acres of pasture.

Each hog will require, if prepared for the market, 12 bushels of corn and 1-4 acre of pasture, and every hen fed for maximum egg production will require 1 bushel of corn or its equivalent in other grain feeds.

For the average 40-acre farm in East Texas, the proper balance in livestock is suggested as follows:

1 team of horses or mules (brood mares used to produce mule colts would be a good guess), 50 hens, 2 cows and 2 hogs. For this layout, an extra horse or mule should be on hand to relieve the mares for a few days at foaling time and the total production of feed should be planned about as follows: 275 bushels of corn, 10 tons of hay and 10 acres of pasture.

On an average, this will mean 15 acres planted to corn if no commercial fertilizer is used; 10 acres to pasture, bermuda and the clovers that thrive in East Texas, preferred; while 4 to 5 acres must be allowed to produce the required amount of hay (sorghum, sudan grass, or alfalfa). This will leave at best, 10 to 15 acres to be devoted to cotton and offers excellent opportunity for intensive cultivation and record per acre yields, particularly if high grade long staple varieties are planted.

It is evident that the average

40-acre farm in East Texas today will be doing well to produce a living and a bit of ready cash for a family if operated with careful and efficient management. Without above average management, there is a question if that area will produce a living for an average farm family.

The first concern of any farm family in Texas or any other state, according to economists along that line, should be that of producing as nearly as possible a living for the family and feed for the farm livestock. It might well be remarked just here that the farm which supports only a team of mangy mules, a dozen or so of lanky hound dogs, some mongrel chickens and a litter of razorback hogs, will have a supreme struggle to produce a bare existence for these and the rather prolific family that usually is found about such a place.

There is plenty of evidence that a balanced system of farming such as may be built up on farms large or small where livestock of good breeding quality is combined with a sufficient amount of home grown feed to make their growing and sale profitable and some crop that may be grown at a production cost which will allow a fair margin of profit on its sale, will pay.

If cotton is to continue to be the chief money crop of the South, it begins to be evident that the quality of staple must be improved and the average yield per acre for the state must be increased. Reducing the acreage devoted to cotton, planting certified seed of recognized long staple varieties, and employing fertilizer and intense cultivation methods, are the means offered by which southern farmers may get away from low yields at high production cost and low sale values.

Livestock, which means dairy cows, beef cattle, sheep, hogs, mules and chickens, will help to furnish the fertilizer required for higher per acre yields, while at the same time this will turn feed into money, furnish food for the farm family and produce young stock with which to replace animals sold and build up better flocks and herds.

It is estimated that Waco packing plants are paying $100,000 annually to poultry raisers in the trade territory of that city and it is expected that on the first anniversary of its opening, the Borden milk plant of Waco will be receiving 100,000 pounds of milk daily from its patrons.

Other dairy markets in both East and West Texas are helping the farmers in their localities to place their farms on a year-round basis of operation, with an income that is steady, dependable and well distributed throughout the year. The fact that farmers in the sections where dairying and poultry raising has been steadily developing during the past 3 to 5 years, are now building substantial houses and barns, purchasing new and better stock by way of improving their herds, and paying their merchants cash for the supplies and commodities used in their homes and their business; should hold the attention of rural market centers that must look to the rural homes in their trade territory for any considerable increase in business during the coming years.

A company has recently been organized in Gainesville for the purpose of establishing a cooperative creamery. The milk and cream production from 200 cows has already been pledged to the enterprise and a systematic effort is being made to add at least 100 more cows to this number by the time the plant is ready for operation.

Birthday Party Friday Night to Annette Morrell

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Morrell entertained at their home five miles from Bryan on Friday night in honor of the 16th birthday of their daughter, Miss Annette Morrell. The affair was planned without the knowledge of the honoree, and when the guests began to arrive, and to wish for her many happy returns of the day and to bestow upon her beautiful gifts in honor of her birthday, she was surprised beyond words.

The list of invited guests contained the names of friends of the honoree from Bryan, Hearne, Caldwell and other nearby towns totaling about 50 guests. A special orchestra from Bryan furnished music for the dance enjoyed by the young folk. During the evening, refreshments of cake and hot chocolate with mints and nuts were served to the guests in the prettily decorated dining room.

Strange Malady Tennessee Town

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., March 11.—Quarantine of 103 patients afflicted by a baffling paralytic malady in Washington, Carter and Unicoi counties was announced Monday by Dr. S. S. Moody, Washington county health officer.

Although neither cause nor cure has been found, Dr. Moody announced "the same precautions taken whenever there is a suspicion of contagion through the respiratory organs are being taken in these cases."

The malady which so far has not proved fatal to any of those afflicted has not responded to any of various treatments to be tried nor have physicians been able to ascertain its cause.

All of those afflicted thus far except two women and a 14-year-old girl, have been men, most of whom, physicians said had given in their case histories records of drinking alcoholic liquor.

Dr. S. S. Moody, health officer for Washington county, said there was growing evidence that liquor may be the cause of the disease.

Many Business Men in East Texas Order Quality Staple Seed; Object Is Supply for Farmers at a Price

LONGVIEW, March 10.—How business men and farmers of East Texas communities are cooperating in movements to improve the quality of cotton staple is revealed in articles in the February and March issues of "East Texas," official publication of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, by Roger Davis, agricultural director. Information contained in the articles was secured through a questionnaire survey among the local Chambers of Commerce and county agents throughout the territory served by the regional commercial organization.

Ninety answers from as many communities were received in the survey. A large number of these disclosed that business men are ordering quality staple cottonseed in car lots to be sold to the farmers at carlot prices, and that efforts are being made to secure for the farmer a local market that can be depended upon to pay him a premium for his quality staple. Most of the remainder of the reports indicated that the field is ripe in other communities for such a mutually beneficial cooperative movement.

More feed and food crops, with a consequent reduction in the cotton acreage, is a corollary of the improved-staple movement.

"As regards all commodities," writes Mr. Davis, "the present-day demand is for a quality product. Particularly is this so in regard to cotton, and high-grade seed are essential to the production of quality staple. Unfortunately, however, too many of our farmers are producing 'buzz-fuzz' instead of quality staple, and, again unfortunately, in many instances they are apparently justified. 'Apparently justified' is used advisedly; for despite the fact that they often get no more for their quality staple if it is sold on 'the street', there is reason why they cannot afford to grow short staple cotton.

"That reason is that the staple of American cotton has deteriorated to such an extent that it is facing a declining demand on the foreign markets. If our farmers do not raise a much higher per cent of quality staple, within a few years we may find that our cotton has been largely superseded by European mills, and even with American mills, by the cotton from India and other cotton-growing countries.

"So it appears to be not merely the question of whether short staple or quality staple is the more profitable to the grower just at present, but whether we are to retain the demand for our product. It is a problem that concerns every business man in the South, and upon them would appear to largely depend its solution. Wherein rests the solution? In marketing, apparently. Not entirely in the south-wide cotton marketing organization, but also in local markets that may be depended upon to pay the farmer his deserved premium for quality staple.

"With few exceptions, only where gin communities have standardized on particular varieties or where quality cotton is grown in considerable quantity, gained separately on certain ways, and pooled for sale, the farmer sells his quality staple on 'the street' at a 'hog-round' price. Naturally, it is hard to persuade him to raise quality staple from high priced seed when he gets about as much money for short staple raised from seed that cost half as much or less.

"It apparently is up to the local business men to see that the farmer has a market with a premium for his quality staple and then to promote the growing of only such cotton as will bring this premium."

YEAR after year the cotton championship of your State is won by a farmer who fertilizes his crop with Chilean Nitrate of Soda. This doesn't just happen to be true. Chilean Nitrate has been the main reason for every cotton championship in every Southern state for five consecutive years.

Texas Cotton Winner

HOMER THIGPEN, Henderson, Texas, won first Club prize in District 6 and made highest club yield in State—1120 lbs. on 1 acre. Crop side dressed with 150 lbs. Chilean Nitrate per acre, after mixed fertilizer used at planting.

"I can highly recommend Chilean Nitrate to anyone who wishes to make more profit per acre."

HOMER THIGPEN, Henderson, Tex.

Chilean Nitrate is the world's only natural nitrate fertilizer—not synthetic, remember. It speeds crop growth. Increases crop yield. Makes better quality... always.

See your local fertilizer dealer. If he does not carry Chilean Nitrate of Soda he can easily get it for you.
